FIFTY-SEVENTH YEAR NO. 46

CEDARVILLE, OHIO, FRIDAY OCTOBER 19, 1934

NEWS LETTER FROM STATE DEPARTMENTS

COLUMBUS.—By reason of the state political campaign now getting under way, Secretary of State George S. Myers has called attention to the provisions of the law forbidding circulation of unsigned campaign material. This has always been a source of trouble in a few sections of the state. Secretary Myers also called particular attention to that provision of the law prohibiting corporations from making any kind of campaign contributions. Last year a few corporations, not being conversant with the law, made some contributions to certain political causes. The latter provision of the law applies not only to contributions toward election of candidates for office but also to constitutional amendments and other issues. Penalties are provided for violation of such election laws.

Warning that the migratory waterfowl hunting stamp act must be strictly observed to avoid being fined to say "good morning" to a federal judge, was received in Columbus from Washington last week. The notice, received by the state division of conservation, states that more than 700 Kenia, and O. Raudsbaugh are at federal agents besides state game wardens and volunteer wardens will be on the watch for violators in the forested areas of Kenia property. United States, and of course Ohio, being on the great lakes with many small lakes, will receive her share of the federal agents. The law requires that every duck hunter over 16 years of age obtain a federal hunting stamp at a postoffice, costing $1. This money pays the cost of administering the law. Violation of the act carries a penalty of not more than $500 fine and not more than six months in federal prison, or both. This migratory waterfowl hunting act is not also based upon a sacred treaty with Canada whereby the United States agrees to protect the birds which usually are reared in Canada and migrate here.

While Ohio is fourth among the states in population and third in wealth, it is 47th in per capita cost of state government, which leads the Ohio Health News to observe that the state division of vital statistics, department of health, has 20 employees compared with 86 in New York and 76 in Pennsylvania. No doubt this latter fact is one reason this state is 47th in per capita cost of state government.

Mailing of 1,000,000 publicity pamphlets to inform voters of Ohio on two proposed initiated amendments to the state constitution is under way by the secretary of state, and will be completed next week. The work is being done in the hall of the House of Representatives. The amendments pertain to related subjects. One proposes that motor vehicles shall be taxed for public thoroughfare purposes only and the tax derived from such source shall not be diverted, by transfer of funds or otherwise, to any other object. At present motor vehicle license funds are being used for poor relief and school support as well as highway purposes. The other amendment proposes that the excise tax on gasoline used to propel motor vehicles shall not exceed three cents a gallon, and shall be used for public thoroughfare purposes only, including the control and protection of traffic, and shall not be transferred for any other purpose. The pamphlets also contain the arguments presented for and against the proposed amendments.

Out door exercise for state prisoners has received strong endorsement by Ohio Penitentiary inmates because of its beneficial effects, the News of that institution declared in its last issue. "Surprisingly infrequent nowadays does one see the sickly, pallid complexion that was once the inevitable lot of every prisoner," the convict editor writes. "The summer-long program of outdoor recreation has proved a fine source of good health to the inmate body, whose practically every member has in some manner or other tapped the source—reaping a sun-bronzed countenance mirroring a healthier mind and body," he continues. The sports program as established in 1933 by Warden Thomas is neither pampering nor coddling, but instead is sound penology, and highly beneficial in its ultimate results to both prisoners and society, the prison organ declares.

The state division of banks announced the following banks were licensed to reopen in September: The Bank of Berea, The Commercial & Savings Bank of Berea and the North American Bank of Cleveland. Two were closed for liquidation: The Minerva Banking Co. and the Citizens Savings Banking Co., Barnesville.

Ida Bath obtained a divorce from Clarence Bath on her charge of gross neglect of duty and was restored to her maiden name of Thompson. "Surprisingly infrequent nowadays does one see the sickly, pallid complexion that was once the inevitable lot of every prisoner," the convict editor writes. "The summer-long program of outdoor recreation has proved a fine source of good health to the inmate body, whose practically every member has in some manner or other tapped the source—reaping a sun-bronzed countenance mirroring a healthier mind and body," he continues. ## 335 Jobs Will Go To Election Workers

A farm survey is to be made in the nation but not until after the November election, no appointments for the 335 jobs in Ohio to be announced until after November 15. The census taking starts next January. The state is divided in seven districts and Greene county is listed in a district composed of the First, Second, Third and Seven congressional districts for enumeration purposes. Greene county will get 7 of the jobs; Clark, 8; Fayette, 5; Logan, 8; Union, 8; Warren, 7; Madison, 8; Champaign, 7; Preble, 10; Butler, 8; Hamilton, 8. Each enumerator will get $4 to $5 for the work. Each district will have a supervisor who will get $300 a month for three months. All appointees must be known Democrats and ability for appointment will be measured by results in lining up the November vote.

Quotas are based on the number of farms as reported in the 1930 census and are said to be tentative as census takers are not yet in the field. The question to be asked K. Each nursery school center is staffed by a teacher, an assistant nurse and a cook.

Attend Funeral Services

The public schools were closed Monday afternoon to allow students and faculty members to attend the funeral services for Miss Rosa Stormont, who retired from full time teaching five years ago last May, but continued to serve as Bible teacher until this fall.

Miss Stormont devoted more than forty years to teaching in the public schools. After having taught as a full time grade teacher thirty-eight years, she gave five years of her time and means to the teaching of Bible in the grades of Cedarville and Clifton. No estimate can be made of the great good she did in molding the characters of the hundreds of children who came under her care and supervision. Few can equal her record of years of efficient, unselfish, and consecrated service; perhaps none can equal the good she did in molding characters and teaching little children God's love.

Surely the poet's words may be appropriately applied to this Christian teacher.

"None knew thee but to love thee, Nor named thee but to praise." During this period of financial uncertainty for our schools, it is of interest to note this sentiment from the letter written by Miss Stormont to the Board of Education at the time.

PREDICTS AID FOR SCHOOLS BY LEGISLATURE

Prediction that the State Legislature, either at the special November session or at the January regular session, will come to the rescue of Ohio schools with financial relief legislation was voiced by Joseph W. Fichter, assistant state director of education, principal speaker Saturday at the annual autumn all-day meeting of the Greene County Teachers' Association at Central High School auditorium.

The crisis facing schools was closely scrutinized at panel discussions which featured the morning and afternoon sessions of the meeting, held in conjunction with other educational agencies of the county. About 200 persons attended the group including members of all local school boards in the city and county, school teachers, ministers and members of Parent-Teacher Associations.

As an outcome of a general discussion on various topics, the group adopted the following seven recommendations, described as "pointers" for future guidance:

- (1) That the scientific angle be used in the alcohol problem—not in any way do we minimize the moral angle;
- (2) We recommend that a joint committee be appointed to face the problems of adult education, looking toward the cultural development of the school and church;
- (3) In the matter of leadership training we suggest closer cooperation;
- (4) We suggest the problem of recreation and leisure time be closely studied by the teachers and ministers of the different communities;
- (5) We raise the question of how far religion should be injected into the public schools;
- (6) We recommend a community calendar be worked out between the churches and schools, eliminating competition;
- (7) We raise the question of how can the church and school compete with outside activities."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Karl Bull, Editor Cedarville Herald Cedarville, Ohio. Dear Mr. Bull:

Quite a gathering of former Cedarvillians was held in Denver, Colorado recently. It was upon the occasion of the meeting of the Nebraska Synod of the United Presbyterian Church, holding their annual convocation in Dr. R. A. Pollock's church in Denver. Dr. J. Alvin Orr, Moderator of the United Presbyterian Church was the morning speaker on Wednesday, October 4th. Following his address those who gathered around from Cedarville were the following: Dr. Merrill C. Jobe, physician in Denver; Uncle "Din" Collins and his wife, formerly Miss Laura Barber; Dr. McCleod George, head of the Bethesda Sanitarium whose father was formerly the Covenant minister in Cedarville at the time Dr. George was born; Mrs. Collins and the writer were also in attendance, representing Tarkio College at the meeting of Synod. Even though Denver is some fifteen hundred miles away, yet those of Cedarville extraction were much interested in the things that are going on in the old home town. Particularly did we comment about the 125th anniversary of the Presbyterian Church in Cedarville. I thought you would be interested in these items.

I might mention in passing that the severity of the drought in this part of the country is hard to realize. This part of Missouri and Southern Iowa depend entirely upon their corn crop. The corn crop this year is a total failure and will do well to make even one bushel per acre. During July and August we had forty four days with temperatures up to a hundred degrees or higher. The normal season has only three days with temperature over a hundred. In spite of this crop condition and drought, enrollment at Tarkio College has exceeded the record enrollment of last year by some five per cent.

Very sincerely,
M. EARLE COLLINS,
President Tarkio College,
Tarkio, Mo.

LETTING THE CAT OUT OF THE BAG

One of the things for which Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, famous for his once pink whiskers, is noted for is talking out of his turn. The Illinois Senator visited Ohio a few days ago to see just how much push Gov. George White and Democratic leaders are putting behind the campaign, especially candidates that will back the Socialistic New Deal. If his investigation results in information reaching the Roosevelt forces in Washington as to actual conditions he may return with sad news.

The Senator is always looking for publicity and the newspaper reporters found him a willing victim at his hotel in Columbus. Just what he thinks of his party candidate for Senator in this state and how he tried to explain the Buckley inflation statement gives rise to the view that his errand was not a successful one.

Senator Lewis was asked about important policies of the Roosevelt administration. The reporters wanted to know how, when and where all the money being loaned by the government to states and cities would ever be repaid. He replied the federal government would never allow itself to go to pieces and we may be headed for single government and single taxes. This means the dropping of all state lines and all taxes to be collected from land. This would come only on this government money not be repaid with interest. He also commented if loans are not repaid: "You may find a change of union of states to a state of union." He pointed out that there is nothing in the constitution to prevent the federal government taxing all the land in the country. These were not only his views but the views of leaders in Washington that we must soon "nationalize the government." Such a movement can come about only by accepting a dictator such as has been done in Russia, Italy and Germany.

It will be recalled that months ago a leading brain trust suggested the government would soon be called upon to "nationalize all life insurance companies in this country." This means the government could own the companies, turn their enormous surplus now used to protect policy holders, into the federal treasury. There would be no dividends to policy holders and the surplus would be given the New Deal magic treatment by revaluing one billion as two billion and help balance the budget. In other words the surplus in insurance funds belonging to policy holders would be confiscated by the government and policy holders get no more than the fact and this in inflated money.

Evidently Senator Lewis was a willing talker to his interviewers and let some things come to the surface the Roosevelt administration has up its sleeve. Abolishing state lines, with taxes on farm land and the site of your home, and capturing life insurance reserves, are more than a remote possibility. It must be kept in mind the Roosevelt administration has no consideration for the property owner out of debt. One in authority in Washington is credited with the statement that even the government has come to the aid of farm and home owners, they must not lose sight of the fact that all government must be supported by taxes in some form, and delinquency of local taxes on property covered by government loans would not be tolerated. It was well the administration sent Senator Lewis to Ohio to investigate political affairs. We doubt that he would get a very warm reception from the most ardent Democratic supporter, particularly if he owned a farm or home. Single government and single taxes, leads next to confiscation of land titles.

THE REAL ENEMIES OF THE PUBLIC

In a recent editorial, the Saturday Evening Post observes that American business is much cleaner and better than the politicians, through their investigations, have tried to represent it.

The investigations of which the Post speaks have been carried on spasmodically for a number of years, and during the last five years greatly increased in number. For the most part, they have been used to manufacture political ammunition. The investigators—and members of both major parties have been involved—have been less interested in giving the people a true picture of affairs, than in seeking to enhance their own reputations as enemies of corruption and friends of the people. The result is that, when evidence was brought forth that in any way indicated that some individual concern was dishonest or unethical, the idea has been subtly disseminated that it was representative of all industry. By this process, public confidence in the character and integrity of our business leaders has been unwarrantedly shaken.

It is as unfair to say that because one banker failed his trust all bankers are crooked, as it would be to point to a public official who accepts a bribe and say that all public officials are of the same stamp. In both business and government there are corrupt men who should be punished, but fortunately they are rare. No one opposes the prosecution of those who have failed their trust—but the ends of justice and decency are certainly not served by making it appear that honorable and honest men, in business and politics, are equally bad citizens.

What this country needs more than anything else now is confidence. Those who seek to destroy confidence to advance their own ends, are the real enemies of the common welfare.

BROWN CONTINUES TO TAKE THE LEAD

We know there are some that look on the "straw vote" as taken by publications previous to elections with some misgiving. Whatever your views might be or the political leaning it must be said that so far "straw votes" have always indicated the way the political wind was blowing. In the campaign for governor in Ohio are issues that should be vital to every elector and especially the head of each family. So far in the campaign it has fallen to the credit of Clarence J. Brown, Republican, to take the lead against his opponent, Martin Luther Davey, the Democratic nominee.

Mr. Brown has been the aggressor in presenting important issues. He is not evading a single thing. He speaks square from the shoulder so that his statements can be understood by all. His is not an evasive campaign, a common fault in most state and federal contests for party supremacy. He has pointed out the high cost of the present Democratic administration that is a burden on the people of the state. He has shown how public funds have been used to build up a vast political machine, some 10,000 more now being on the state payroll than when Gov. White entered office. Much of the legislation of the White administration has proven worthless to the average citizen and the public school system has suffered for lack of funds to keep the educational institutions open on a nine month basis. It is natural that Mr. Brown can take the lead with his opponent handicapped by the maladministration of his own political party. Mr. Davey is not defending the White administration but his weakness is in not having clear-cut proposals as to what he will or will not do. For this reason the "straw vote" shows the predominant drift of sentiment in favor of Mr. Brown.

Mr. Davey has burdened himself with his proposal of a moratorium on payment of taxing district bonds. At the same time he urges bonding the state for a cool $100,000,000 on the plea of creating employment. With the federal government spending in several millions daily and unemployment where it was six months ago, it is perfectly clear to the average home and farm owner that a regretful day is ahead when it comes to paying for such experiments. With the moratorium plan as suggested by Mr. Davey we are at a loss to know how he would hold the credit of the state and be able to sell the enormous bond issue.

Mr. Brown has the "straw vote" lead and you know why.

Much has been claimed by the Roosevelt administration for legislation giving depositors of banks guarantee up to $5,000. Outside of this law being passed under the present administration that is all that can be said. Senator Arthur Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, is the author of the bill and put up the fight in both Houses of Congress that made it a law. Even the Democratic administration did not press passage for it was head over heels in NRA legislation. Now the Roosevelt administration will deny credit to Senator Vandenberg for his efforts. Now corn-hog money, sugar beet money, $30,000,000 for a dream bridge across the straits of Mackinaw and several million in loans to closed banks forms the new bait or bribe to defeat Vandenberg. All straw votes tend to show Vandenberg will be reelected by a big vote and the state will send at least six new Republican congressmen to Washington in opposition to the New Deal.

A prominent Republican farmer slips the writer the quiet information of his Democratic neighbor who is much peeved over some of the Roosevelt Socialist policies, especially the sale of coal under the NRA codes. The shoe pinched and this good Democrat refused to pay the price, his comment being that he hoped there would be some cold toes in the White House before winter is over. To aid the Roosevelt program this Democrat farmer, who has a county wide reputation, is filling his basement with wood and has two men now at work cutting the winter supply in the woods. The tenant will also get his supply so no union coal miner is to profit by the use of coal on that farm.

Some other statistics are also interesting concerning the administration. Roosevelt has been in office less than twenty months. He has been away from the White House on vacation more days than did Hoover, Coolidge, Harding and Wilson combined. His vacation travels during that time have cost the government twice as much in less than twenty months than was the cost under the administrations of the four ex-presidents named. While pleading for more relief aid for the unemployed it can be taken for granted that Roosevelt is making no personal sacrifice in either time or money of his own. The government is paying for his pleasure out of public funds while crumbs are being handed to the unemployed.

President Roosevelt has signed a new executive order that places the textile industry under a thirty-six hour week with no reduction in pay. This means the ladies cotton dress, undies, men's suits, shirts will be increased in cost of manufacture. This means in higher retail prices. Washington is now being deluged with protests over the high cost of living and it is getting on the nerves of the braintrusts. At a recent press conference one of the braintrusts was asked how consumers were going to be able to purchase under the continued mounting in manufactured and retail prices? "Any decent man should be willing to pay more to keep another man on the job," was the answer.

In speaking of executive orders do you know that President Roosevelt has signed more than 7,000 executive orders, adding to and taking away of parts of the federal laws as well as the constitution. The orders in printed form cover more than 10,000 pages set in small type. He has broken all records as this number is more in 18 months than were issued by all past presidents for fifty years, including the necessary number under Woodrow Wilson during the war.

Now that the corn-hog signers have had their referendum on continuance of the plan the consumers of thirty-five cent pork chops in the cities are emitting a loud howl as to why the Roosevelt AAA did not give them a chance, as it was the consumer's money that pays the processing tax. As we scan some of the city papers for editorial comment we find some of the strongest supporters of the Socialistic government in Washington asking the same questions. Even the comment in "Letters to the Editor" take exception to the plan. It will be recalled the promise to the city labor union element was that the cost of living was not to be increased. At the same time the AAA was promising farmers a method of increasing farm revenue. We are still waiting to see how the plan works out. Even the American Federation of Labor in session last week took a crack at the increased cost of living and demanding a thirty hour week with no reduction in pay.

My how things do change about a railroad station. One of the few uninhabited places of the present business day might be classed the ordinary railroad station. First we saw the curtailment of train service due to bus and automobile transportation. One of the old time fixtures to be displaced was the operator who gave way to a new electric signal system. In the days of big railroad business it took at least two men to care for the company business at the passenger and freight station. Now days one man on part time is all that is necessary. Locally there was once much activity about the passenger station. Both waiting rooms would be filled with travelers and salesmen. Not so long ago the men's waiting room was converted into a freight depot and the old freight house dismantled. A day or so ago we had occasion to visit the depot on business. Stepping into what was once the waiting room for ladies, and all that is left for that purpose now, we faced a boarded pen in one corner of the room. A glance and here was stored the winter supply of coal. Even the coal house is no longer a needed fixture at a railroad station. How things have changed.

The recent kidnapping of Mrs. Berry Stoll, Louisville, Ky., which has kept the nation on its toes for several days, has a local connection. According to reports the kidnapper evidently had prepared to take Mr. Stoll, who was not at home. The Stoll brothers are independent oil operators and both have frequently visited Cedarville back in the days when R. C. Ritenour conducted a wholesale and retail oil and gasoline business. At that time the brothers traveled and sold their own product and have amassed a fortune in the business.

The Cleveland News, Republican, suggests a public debate between the two candidates for United States Senate from Ohio. It is urged that the debate be of the Lincoln-Douglas type with Sen. Fess on one side and Ex-Governor Donahoe on the other. The issues evidently are of greater importance to future government than previous to the Civil War. Debates between candidates would bring out issues in a much clearer fashion than the rambling campaign style we have had the past twenty-five years. Clarence J. Brown and Martin Davey might also give a public debate on the "Moratorium."

Col. Hughes, the dictator of the White new fashioned liquor stores, has resigned to take a position as federal alcohol director in Washington. Hughes during his term of liquor control management has denied even legal authority of the state, much like Gen. Hugh Johnson of NRA. Both are of military training. At one time Hughes obligated the credit of the state for more than six million dollars worth of liquor. He has established 121 liquor stores in the state. No reason for leaving the state service has been made public by Hughes but politicians intimate that Hughes sees the handwriting on the wall with the election of either Brown or Davey for governor. The next legislature will no doubt be asked to repeal the state liquor law and return the business to private interests.

Within the next few weeks there will be a rush for Washington as a haven of refuge by Ohio Democratic office holders on the state pay roll. Most of the appointees under Gov. White were against Martin L. Davey, who won the nomination. His primary promise was to clean out the state house and give other Democrats a chance. With the election of Clarence J. Brown, which seems to be a certainty at this date, means a general house cleaning, and still more Democrats can take the dusty trail to New Deal headquarters or get on the Roosevelt relief list. Supt. Warner, head of the Ohio Building and Loan department has already resigned and secured a parking place in Washington. No tears were shed at this news as neither B-L management or stockholders approved his administration.

Historical Mileposts

Of Ohio

By C. S. Van Tassel

(Copyrighted)

The ninth session of the Ohio Legislature according to previous action was to be held at Zanesville. That new city and the county of Muskingum had pledged the erection of suitable Capitol buildings, their hope being that if that place were once made the seat of justice, the result would be permanent.

The structures were even better than those at Chillicothe. The main building was of brick and stone trimmings, the architecture being copied from Independence Hall, Philadelphia. It was fifty feet square two stories; the cost was about $8,000.00. The first floor was occupied by the House of Representatives and the second floor by the Senate. On the Chillicothe idea there was a one story separate building costing $1000.00, occupied by the Secretary of State and State Auditor. There was no provision for a new prison.

The State took possession of the new quarters in October, 1810. Zanesville citizens gladly doing the work of removing all records, official documents and books, and the General Assembly met in its first session there December 3rd following.

As stated in a previous sketch, the Legislature had provided for a commission to locate a permanent capital, and the provision was that the site must be within forty miles of the geographical center of the State, consequently, Zanesville could not be considered. After Zanesville was honored for two years, the seat of government was moved back to Chillicothe where it remained until transferred to Columbus. Zanesville's investment, however, was not a total loss, for it used its fine new structures for a county court house. To finish the capital controversy, the question was settled by the tenth session of the General Assembly, at Zanesville, after considering nine different sites, the location being in a forest on the east bank of the Scioto River, opposite Franklinton, where a town was laid out to fit the plans and named Columbus. The capital was removed there from Chillicothe, December 2, 1816. Other places considered were Delaware, Worthington, a point northwest of Franklinton, Circleville, one on the Pickaway Plains and two others in Franklin County. The Commission had recommended the Delaware site on the agreement that the town was to donate the Capitol site and erect the buildings with other concessions, but after lobbying and political influence, Delaware lost out by a close legislative vote.

R., and to the ancestry of the Reid home, which is owned by Mr. Odgen Mills Reid, of New York, son of the late Whitlaw Reid. He also paid a tribute to John Reid, who came from Tyrone County, Ireland, to Kentucky and later to Greene County. His son, Robert Charlton Reid, built the present Reid home, which was later remodeled by Whitlaw Reid, his son.

"They were the most sturdy diligent and eminent people and had a keen sense of right and wrong," Dr. McChesney said. He then offered a tribute to the late Whitlaw Reid, of world fame became of his service as ambassador to France and in the Court of St. James in England.

R., and regents of Xenia, Springfield, Jamestown and Jeffersonville chapters. Each spoke briefly, Mrs. Robert Jacobs sang two solos, accompanied by Mrs. O. W. Kuehrmann.

Temperance Notes

Sponsored by Cedarville W. C. T. U.

The best of liquor will get the best of a man.

"Drunken driving is striking a pace that must soon lead to the old road marked (This way to Prohibition)." —Washington (D. C.) Evening Star.

The Brewers' Journal for September says: "If any brewer thinks that the dregs are depressed or pessimistic he'd better change his views quickly—for they are optimistic, sure that they'll return prohibition to the U. S. A., and they are on the jog twenty-four hours every day."

The Minister of Justice in Finland reports that since repeal of Prohibition illegal sale of liquor has increased 61.3 per cent; the illegal transportation of liquor 180.3 per cent; alcoholic delinquency, 69.0 per cent. "This ought to spell the 'Finish' of repeal in Finland," says the Presbyterian Advocate.

How much safer the roads are when they are dry! How much safer they will be when the drivers are dry, too!

Mr. Thomas Henry, president of the American Automobile Association, says: "The tragic consequences of repeal are everywhere apparent. Those who never favored prohibition in years past admit their alarm at present conditions. The inherent criminality of the liquor traffic is widely recognized. No policy of whitewashing the business by the nominal change from saloons to 'liquor stores' can longer deceive the public. When a driver is drunk it is immaterial whether he got the booze in a saloon or a 'liquor shoppe'."

"I Am Christian"

The editor of an exchange quotes Dr. Vibert's account of the saloon-keeper who admitted that his business was none too honorable, but excused it with the words, "But I must live, you know." The editor of the exchange compares this with the words of the Chinese who was hired as a cook in a wealthy home of professing Christians. When asked for his principles he said, "I am Christian." He had not been there long when there was a party at which liquor flowed freely. The next morning the cook notified the lady of the house that he was leaving, and to her remonstrances only replied, "I told you before, I am Christian."

Lesson for October 21

THE CHRISTIAN AT PRAYER

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 6:15-16; Ephesians 6:18-21.
GOLDEN TEXT—Rejoicing in hope; patient in tribulation; continuing instant in prayer, Romans 12:12.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How to Pray.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Prayer Jesus Taught His Disciples.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Learning How to Pray.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Prayer as Fellowship With God.

I. False Prayer (vv. 5, 7, 8).
1. Praying to be seen and heard of men (v. 5). To go through the act of praying with such an object is to play the hypocrite. In praying, the soul is dealing with God; therefore, to engage in it to attract men's attention is blasphemy. Many of the prayers uttered in the public sanctuary are false, for there is more consideration given to what the people think than to what God thinks. Men who thus pray get a reward, but not from God.

2. Using vain repetitions (vv. 7, 8). This does not mean that we should ask but once for the thing desired, for we have examples of Christ and Paul praying these things three times (Matt. 26:39-40; 2 Cor. 12:7, 8), but rather it means the use of meaningless repetitions, their repetitions becoming empty sounds. To thus pray is heathenish. The heathen nations in their worship of idols engage in senseless babble, an example of which we see in the priests of Baal on Mount Carmel (1 Kings 18:26).

II. True Prayer (v. 9).
Since true prayer is a definite transaction of the soul with God, the communion of the human personality with the divine personality, we should have a real desire for fellowship with God and then go to meet him in secret. Life for its fullest development needs both solitude and companionship. Solitude alone makes one morose, while constant companionship makes one shallow. God who made us know what our natures required, therefore he commands both public and private prayer (Heb. 10:24; Matt. 6:6). We should have our closest prayers, when all the world, its cares and pleasures, is shut out, and we are shut in with God. We should also meet with God's children to pray.

III. A Model Prayer (vv. 9-13).
This was given in response to the disciples' request that the Lord would teach them to pray (Luke 11:1). It is not, therefore, strictly the Lord's prayer, but the model prayer for the disciples. It involves:

1. A right relationship (v. 9). One must be in such relationship as to be able to say "Our Father." Only those who have become children of God by faith in Jesus Christ (Gal. 3:26) can pray aright.
2. A right attitude (vv. 9, 10). "Hallowed be thy name." When one realizes that he has been delivered from the power of darkness and translated into the kingdom of his dear Son (Col. 1:13) by being made a child of God, he cannot help praising out his soul in gratitude and praise, intensely longing for the kingdom—that is, the righteous rule of Christ on the earth.

3. A right spirit (vv. 11-13).
a. That of trust which looks to God for the supply of daily bread. We are dependent upon him for our daily food. With all man's boasted progress, he cannot make a harvest.
b. That of love which results in forgiveness of others. God will not listen to the prayers of the one who has an unforgiving spirit.
c. That of holiness which moves one to pray not to be led into temptation. Such a one longs to be delivered from the Evil One.

IV. Paul's Prayer for the Ephesians (Eph. 3:14-21).
1. To whom made (vv. 14, 15). It was to the Father of the Lord Jesus Christ.

2. For what he prayed (vv. 16-19).
a. For the strengthening of the inner man by the Holy Spirit (v. 16).
b. For Christ's indwelling (v. 17). The human personality needs the quickening of the Spirit in order that it might be a fit place for Christ to dwell.
c. That they might be rooted and grounded in love (v. 17). The only way that real love can flow from the human heart is through Christ's indwelling.

3. The apprehension of Christ's love (vv. 18, 19). This love, in its depth, breadth, width, and height, transcends human understanding.
4. The triumphant assurance that this will be realized (vv. 20, 21). This realization, which is beyond human ability to even think, is to be accomplished by the indwelling of the Holy Spirit.

What We Live For

We may say what we will, and profess what we will, that which we live for determines who we are and what we are. "For me to live in Christ," cried St. Paul. As other men live for gain or pleasure, the Christian is meant to be a man who lives for Christ.

Trouble Within

Today I have got out of all trouble, for it was not outside, but within and in my opinions.—Marcus Aurelius.

Sees Larger Beef Calf Crop In Ohio

Trend Toward Raising Own Calves Is Clear, Says Animal Husbandman

Ohio farmers intend to raise more of their own beef calves and buy fewer of them from western range cattlemen.

The trend in this direction is clear, according to L. P. McCann, extension specialist in animal husbandry for the Ohio State University. McCann points out that it has been clearly demonstrated in recent years that beef calves can be produced cheaply in Ohio, and that such calves are not subject to shipping fever nor are they set back by shrinkage in transit.

Last winter 14 farmers kept complete feed cost records on their beef breeding herds. They brought their cows through the year at a feed cost of $12.17 per cow. Pasture was charged against each cow in the herd at the rate of $1 per month, and other feeds at the rates current in the community.

The herds, comprising 500 cows, had a 92 per cent calf crop. Feed cost to produce one calf amounted to $13.78.

Lowest feed cost per calf raised in the 14 herds was $10.61; highest cost was $19.10.

Breeders depended primarily on coarse, rough feeds such as stover, unsuitable hay and straw for carrying the dry cows through the winter. A few used better grade feeds including silage, and one or two added alfalfa.

McCann, the feeding practices followed by the 14 breeders kept the wintering cost down to a very low point. Since keeping records several of the farmers have expanded their beef breeding herds; none has reduced.
